EOMYS can provide some free, fixed-term research licenses for both industrial R&D departments and academics (e.g. PhD students). EOMYS is particularly interested in sharing MANATEE software for the projects involving:

- experimental measurement campaigns
- benchmarking of software solutions to calculate the NVH behaviour of electric powertrains
- development of fast electromagnetic models
- study of electromagnetic and e-NVH performance tradeoffs

Research projects are also invited to contribute to Pyleecan open-source initiative under Python.
